

When you're a giant in precision turning technology, you have an appreciation for a perfect

Index Corporation is a world leader in precision turning technology, making the machines that make the parts – from orthopedic implants to aeronautical turbines. So when the German-based giant decided to move its American corporate headquarters, it naturally looked for a state that was a perfect fit. It chose Indiana. Our universities are world-renowned for engineering and high-tech graduates. Our location is a logistics manager's dream. And our cost of doing business is one of the lowest in the Midwest.
